

WHITE, RED AND GREEN

Italian election day in the early '80s. Three men leave to reach their respective voting places. Furio, a pedantic and chatterbox clerk living in Turin, is leaving with his family on his way to Rome. The same goes for the half-witted Mimmo and his diabetic grandmother, whom he will have to care for during the travel. Meanwhile, Pasquale, an Italian immigrant in Germany, leaves alone on his car directed to southern Italy.

Scored by the Academy Award Winner Ennio Morricone.
